

PLANTING GUIDE FOR CORIANDER

Cilantro (Coriandrum sativum) is an herb popular in India, Middle East and Asia cuisines. This herb has thin, green stems and flat leaves, which are edible. Cilantro is best planted in the early spring but also can be started in fall. It grows quickly and yields harvest within 30 days. Its seeds will be ready for harvest closer to three months from planting.

Planting site:

- A. Choose a planting site that has loose, well-drained soil. It can manage full sun or partial shade.
- B. One good option is placing them in containers.

Select Outdoor Location

1. Leave 1-2 inches apart between seeds and dig 1/4 to 1/2 inch deep into the soil.
2. To guarantee good airflow between rows of cilantro plants, you must leave at least 12 inches apart.
3. No need to provide support structure.

Harvest Time

*Harvest in about 25-35 days. Stems and leaves can be picked earlier as the plants grow
